The New York Sunday law is probably too rigorous to be strictly enforced. On Sanday one man was promptly arrested for sweeping the snow off his sidewalk. When Gotham gets down to that it won't have any Sunday law at all in a short

The new legislature, according to the official returns, will stand, senato-republicans, 17; democrats, 15; independent, 1. The assembly will contain 53 democrats, 45 republicans, and two independents There will be one contested seat, the A Prisoner at Troy, N. Y., Nearly claimants being from Door county.

One consciencious democrat has como to the surface. Congressman Manning of Mississippi, refuses to accept a certificate of re-election from the governor on the ground that he doesn't think he was fairly elected. But the governor refuses to give the certificate to Chalmers, of Fort Pillew massacre notoriety, who was Manning's opponent, and will probably order a new election.

The four greatest American platform orators are Henry Ward Beecher, Wendell Phillips, Robert G. Ingersoll, and John B. Gough. Any one of these can till any half in any city without the drumming advertisements, so necessary ni regard to other speakers. Gough has been on the platform ever since 1844, and has probably faced more people than any other orator in Europe or America. He has tectured over $8.5\,\mathrm{)}$ 0 times and thus stand before 8,500,000 people in that time. He has traveled over 415,000 miles, and has received nearly a million dollars for his lectures. He is still in good demand, and like Ingersoll, cannot find days enough in the year to meet the demands for his lectures.

Josia'i A. Noona i, of Milwaukee, widely kno va an ong p daters all over the west, is a mercal wreck. There was a time when Mr. Noonan was one of the most enterprising and prominent citizens of Milwaukee. He did a good thing for the pioneer press of the northwest; but of ato he lost his gup on the public, and after living a life fall of years and full of trouble, he is taken to the asylum at Milwatkee. An item appears in the Sunday Telegraph to the effect that Mr. Noonan is a complete and helpless wreck, recognizes noboly and is a painful object to see, and then the paper says: "He was visited at the asylum, the other day, by Alexander Mitchell and Gen. Hobart, but exhibited no spark of intelligence as his eyes rested on them. Mr. Noonan had been a bitter enemy of Mr. Mitchell for many years, although in early times they were close friends, and it was a gracious act for the veteran banker to go on this errand of mercy to the failen monarch in politics."

In commenting on the vote in Wiscon sin which has been canvassed by the state board, the Milwaukee Republican-Sentiacl notes the fact that the republican loss is 49,059, the democratic loss 12,432, and the prohibition and scattering gain 13,300. The republican loss is nearly 35 per cent., and the democratic over 10 per cent. The 10 per cent, represents the usual falling off from presidential years, leaving the republican loss about 25 per cent. Assuming the prohibition vote was taken from the republicans, the loss through non-voting is about 15 per cent. The first congressional district shows the highest republieun and the lowest democratic loss, the former losing 6,961 and the latter 349. After giving the cause that led to this disastrous result in Wisconsin and other states, the Republican concludes: "The present congress is determined to correct whatever the people have condemned, the legislation

No Less than Eleven Persons Shot Down in the Engagement, One Of Whom will Die.

THE WAR OF TROY TROY, N. Y., Dec ! 1 .- The wildest excitement prevailed Saturday afternoon. F. B. Sears was arrested by a member of the new police force for swindling morehants on the representation that ho was an agent of the Kendle Manufacturing company, of Providence. In the afternoon the accused was taken before Justice Hassett, whose symmathies are with the old force. Hassett claimed that the new code would compel him to issue a warrant for larceny. He did so, but, instead of handing it to Capt. Cary of the new force, gave Capt. O'Loughlin, of the opposition force, immediately called several of his officers from another part of the building, and O'Loughlin also summoned his men. Both sides rushed at each other in the justice's office. A fight for the custody of the prisoner resulted. The alleged swindler, who was finely dressed, was dragged from the office by one set of police and dragged back again by the opposite officers. Black eyes were numerous, and finally, when clubs and revolvers were about to be used, the new force took the prisoner away and rushed him to their headquarters. The old force followed.

the justice's office and swore out warrants for those of the new force who had participated in the fraces. The charge was re-culing a prisonor. The new officers, not aware of the warrants, scarted two hours later with Sears for a neighboring village, where they intended procuring a commitment for the accised. The men and their captors had not gone had a block when the old policemen, who have been barricaded in the second precinct stationhouse, rushed from their building, and roinforced by others, sprang upon the new force and their prisoner.

A riot casued. Clubs were freely used by both forces and pistols drawn. The street was blocked by citizens, who attempted to end the fraces, but were rudely jostical. A report came in from those nearest the fray to those on the outside that two men had been clubbed to death, and the excitement was intensified. After tive whoules desperate fighting the poince broke through the crowd. The representatives of the old force hurried to the station house with two captains, a sergeant and a discretive of the new force returned to their beadquartors, with Sears so thoroughly frightened that he was speechless. It was then learned that one person had been seriously injured. He was Detective O'Hairn, of the new force of the general without a bruise. The four of the new force captared one of the participants escaped without a bruise. The four of the new force cantured bruise. The four of the new force captured were thrown into cells, where they languished until night, whon they were released by order of the county judge. Warrants are out for other new efficiers engaged in the brawl. It is stated that the mayor, who upholds the new force, will hesitate no longer in calling out the military.

OPELIKA, ALA.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 11.—More trouble among the cilizens of Opolika, Ala., near the Georgia line, is reported here by a New York tourist, who spent Saturday in that city, where the short gun policy is now in full bloom. He says: "About half-past 5 Saturday afternoon Jim Roberts wrenched a club from a policoman, who was foreed to give it up by five friends of Roberts, who held their pistols on him. The policeman, seeing he was about to be assaulted, retreated to the saloon of Mayor Dunbar. Upon arriving there he drew a short gun from behind the door and fired both bar reis into the faces of the pursuers, who were coming at him at a rapid rate. The firing of this gun seemed to be a general note of aharm, for a moment later the streets were filled with excited mon, who were armed with short-guns and pistols. Promiseuous firing then followed. Nine white men and one negro were badly wounded with pistol-baths and buckshot, while many ethers were peppered with leaden measengers of all sizes. After the difficulty Bob Maloney, formerly of Atlanta, new of Opelika, was shot in the shoulder by a young man whom he attempted to put out of his store. Maloney will more than probably die, as his condition is most unfavorable. Among those badly perforated with buck-shot are Robert and Sam Lovett, Jim Roberts, T. J. Williams, Joseph Barnes, and two brothers by the hame of Williams, one of them quite severely. All of the trouble originated from differences existing between factions backing the old and new councils. Dunbar and his council, although elected fairly and so declared by the courts of law, have failed to to get the support of a portion of the ax-payers of Opelika, who are friends to the opposition olement.

Mayor Dunbar, when the difficulty took place, was absont from the city, visiting Montgonery, whore he was conferring with Gov. O'Neil upon the bost mode of securing order in Opelika, and meaning the pussengers taid low on the floor and in their sonts, fearing that some trouble wealth spring up and that th OPELIKA, ALA.

Anthony Trollope,

LONDON, Dec. 11 .- Anthony Trollope was buried to-day in Kensal Green, where lie so many of the literary craft. The funeral was quite private. He has left three unfinished lovels two of which are running in periodicals. novels two of which are running in periodicals. His total work has been fifty novels, besides other books, in thirty years. He always made it a rule the very day he finished one heyel to begin another, and worked with great method—indeed, he even left a record of the number of words contained in his books, the grand total, as your readers can readily imagine, being something tremondous. It is understood that he possessed very ample means.

The Alhambra Theatre Fire. London, Dec. 11.-The destruction of the Alhambra theaire causes a renewed demand from the play-going public for a thorough reconstruction of our theatres, from many of which escape in the event of a contlagration would be absolutely impossible. Of course, the lord chamborlain will now take the matter seriously in lead, and refuse licenses to all the theatres which cannot make provisious against fire. The Alhambra had slways been considered one of the safest theatres in London, yet it was as much as the resident fireman could do to get his own wife and child out of the building before the roof fell in. Less than twenty minutes saw the complete destruction of the building. Another consequence of the fire at the Alhambra and the still greater conflagration in Wood street will surely be a greater increase in the strength of the fire brigade, new far too small. Many of the irromen have been on duty this wook for lifty hours, and even longer, without intermission.

MRS. LANGTRY.

She is Prostrated by Nervous Weakness in Boston,

Her Friends Augrily Deny the Whole of Mrs. Labouchere's Statements of Friday.

Young Gebhardt Has Been Sent Back to New York Post Haste.

Boston, Dec. 11.-Mrs. Langtry has been so overworked with rehearsals and constant performances that she is suffering greatly rone nervous prostration, and at the close of the second act of "An Unequal Match" Saturday afternoon, the indulgence of the andience was claimed for ten minutes, At the end of that time the curtain was raised, and the peformance was fire ished as usual. At night her norvous system was so overwrought that she had to decline all invitations and visitors, and, although she went through her part of Rosatind, in "As You Like II," it was evident she was suffering greatly. She was to have gone to the Papyrus club reception at night to meet the literary men and women of the city, and a number of speciallyinvited guests, including Governor Long and his mother, but this she was compelled to forego. In regard to the interview with Mrs. Labouchere in Washington, Mr. Charles A. Mendum, the acting manager of the company, was seen in the absence of Mr. Abbey and Mr. Schoeffel in New York, and deviced in the most unqualified terms the truth of the assertions Mrs. Labouchere is alloged to have made. Mrs. Langery could not be seen, but Mr. Mendum, speaking by Ler authority, states that the relations between the two women were perfectly amicable when they parted in New York, and that, so far as Mrs. Langery knows, they still conlinue. They will join the company again in Philadelphia on Tuesday, the 19th inst, when a third party will be present in the person of Mrs. Langery's sister, who will arrive here from England, and will travel with the company during the American four.

sister, will arrive note from linguaga, and will travel with the company during the American tour.

The story of a liason with Baren Chetwynd is contemptuously ridiculed by Mr. Mendam, who points to the fact that Mrs. Langtry moved in the best socioty in England, and was an espocial favorito with the princess of Wales and other pure women, who would never have countenanced her had thore been the layer countenanced her had thore been anything of the should have been, but was not, wholly above suspicion. Had there been anything of the kind it must have become known, and Mr. Abbey would never have speculated in the success of a good anateur actress who was weighted with a bad record. Her relations with her husband and family have always been of the most happy character, and this alone tends to disprove the statement. It is admitted that she has not acted here with as much caution as the average American woman would do, but from her standpoint, as an English actress, she has not treepassed the bounds of propriety. In London it is considered the correct lining for an actress to receive attentions from admirers of their ability or beauty, and while following that custom here she has in no manner overstopped the line drawn by all virtuous women. Mr. Gelbarch has followed her here, has shown his admiration for her in the most open manner, has put up at the same hote, which, of course, he had a right to do. ner here, has shown his admiration for her in the most open manner, has put up at the same hote, which, of course, he had a right to do, and last night he returned to New York. Further than an openly-expressed homage he has not gone. The theatro people claim that her financial success here has been very great, and that the present wock's receipts will reach $15,000.

A GREAT SNOW STORM. England and the Continent Suffant

... A Train Lost in the Snow in Wales.

London, Dec. 11.-England has been undergoing one of her historical snow-storms. It has been snowing heavily in every part of the united kingdom, and travel has overywhere been obstructed. The sailing of the occan stoamers has been retarded, all railways have been impeded, great damage has been done to properly, and the mails and telegraphs have been thrown into confusion. In Wales a train was lost, and was sought for by bodies of mon on horseback. Finally the top of it was discovered protruding through a snow-drift sixteen feet deep. The imprisoned passengers had suffered from hunger and cold in the unheated cars for eighteen hours. It took a day and a half to dig out the train. The passengers suffered fearfully from the exposure, but is thought they will all recover. It is still snowing in parts of England, and accounts of death from cold and exposure are being received from all cuarters. The suffering which railway travelers have endured in every part of the country must seem incredible to Americans. Many parts of the country are inaccossible by reason of the drifts, and persons have been found on the highways frozen to death. In London the snow mixed with the fug and turned into a black slush, but the rost of England is under deep snow. The weather on the continent has been unprecedentedly bad everywhere but in the extreme south of France, and Italy, and Spain. The Seino is higher than ever before. Boats cannot pass under the Paris bridges. The calians of the public buildings are inundated, and a good deal of apprehension is felt at the steady rise of the water. teen feet deep. The imprisoned passongers had mon, so far as history is concerned, that has been published this season. Mr. Coffin takes up the history of the country just after the "Boys of "76" had fought their last battle, and continues to the beginning of the war between the states and the election of Abraham Lincoln as president of the country. He relates, in, that fascinating style which has rendered his historical writings so popular with young readers, how the American colonies, having wrested their independence from Great Britain as the result of the revoluntionary way, became united under one government; how the United States increased in power, in wealth, in territory; how their resources were developed; how their influence extended among the nations of the world; in short how the great western republic came to be what it was at the time of the ontbreak of the war of the rebellion. The social, religious, and moral forces by which the character of the people has been determined, and the achievements of Americans in the domains of science, literature, and the mechanical arts, receive special attention, while most entertaining views are given of the manners and customs which prevail in different periods and sections of the country.

Mr. Bartlett has exercised considerable ingenuity in devising new means of oujoyment for the young, and of such a high standard that even adults may participate in many of them without a loss of dignity. Some of the most fascinating of the games described are based upon a knowledge of grammar, natural history drawing, geography, and literature, and are therefore calculated to develop in the players a familiar knowledge of the English language, and censiderable expertness in its use. The book is a pretty one in typography and binding.

HERTHER OF ANCIENT ARE. By Dr. Franz Von Reber. Revised by the anthor, and translated and augmented by Joseph T. Cheke, with 30 illustrations. New York: Harper & Brothers, I volume; price, cloth, $3.50. This is a very valuable book to those who are interested in the study of ancient art, whether in architecture, sculpture or painting. It contains a great deal of trustworthy and important information, and while not assuming the dignity of a complete history of art, it has so much good in it regarding the art of the ancients, that students will find it a very useful handbook. It can, therefore, serve equally well as an introduction to the study of the subject, and as a treatise to which an advanced student can refer to refresh his memory. The first edition of this work appeared in 1871, but the present one has been thoroughly revised and brought down to date. Muci new matter and many new illustrations have also been added, making it a very valuable work of reference.

The Sunday Law In New York Vigorously Enforced by the Police.

Men "Run In" for Shaving Themselves and for Shoveling Snow from the Sidowalks.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11 .- The Sunday provisions of the penal code were enforced with vigor yesterday. Barbers, bootblacks, news-dealers, telegraph and telephone companies were permitted to carry on their business, and Hebrews who were protected by injunc-tions were not interfered with. Many liquor dealers in the neighborhood of police headquarters, who were closed last Sunday, had their side doors open yesterday. At police headquarters Commissioner Matthews and Superintendent Walling were on duty until 2 o'clock. They had no occasion to give their interpretation of the law to any citizens. Superintendent Walling said the provisions of the code were generally observed throughout the city. About twenty-five persons were arrested. At Yorkville police court the first case brought was that of Abraham Goldstein, lesses of Irving hall, who was arrosted for keeping the hall open after 12 o'clock Saturday night for a bail. He gave bail to answer. Moise Mahn, a butcher, was arrested violating the law, and was discharged. Justice Power said to the officer: "What did you see him doing?" The officer replied that some one made a complaint at the station house, and he found the man figuring over his books. There was no one in the shop but himself. "I think it is a shame," said Justice Powers, "to make arrests like this. A lot of irresponsible persons are going about prying into matters that don't concern them, and upon their slip of a printed complaint left at the station-house, officers are sent out to arrest the various persons." An officer arrested George Bendór, a barber, for slaving himself in the store. Bender was disclarged at the station-house.

Over one thousand people crowded Concordia assembly-rooms to protest against the provisions of the nearly cold. first case brought was that of Abraham Gold-charged at the station-house.

Over one thousand people crowded Concordia assembly-rooms to protest against the provisions of the penal code respecting the Sahbath. The meeting was called by the Socialistic-Labor party. Resolutions were adopted denouncing the code as a revival of the laws of the Puritans, the police for permitting the weating to have ice-cream and denying the poor bread after 9 o'clock, and the police commissioners as presuming to set themselves up as judges of what the law should be. The Sunday laws are not enforced very strictly in Brocklyn. No general orders other than those issued last Sunday by Chief of Police Campbell were promulgated.

John Orr was arrested for being hired to clean a sidewalk of snow, but was discharged. Justice White instructed Capt. Potty that Jews who observe Saturday should be allowed to sell goods quictly on Sanday. Two expressdrivers were fined for driving their wagens on Sunday. They asked how they could get their wagens away from the police station and Justice White told them perhaps Capt, Potty would tolegraph to the different procints that they had already been arrested.

The Balance of Trade.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—The report of the bureau of statistics for October, showing the imports and exports, indicates a very important change in the balance of trade. There is an excess of exports over imports of merchandisc and specie amounting to $6,878,096, showing that the balance is again in favor of this country. While the balance was against us for seven months of the year, it was suddenly turned in our favor in October, and it is now probable that the trade figures for November and the current month will show a satisfactory and the current month will show a satisfactory increase. The most important gain is that of specie. Our imports of coin and builton during October exceeded our exports by $5,530,145, and the greater part of this increase was gold which came from the West ladies, but which would have been divorted to Europe had it not been for the fact that our exchanges wore in such a condition as to attract the gold hither. This shows that our adverse trade balances have been dipulated, and the exchanges are now in such a state that a very slight pressure of bills will bring gold from Europe. At the moment gold importations as an exchange operation for profit are not probable, but foreign bankers are prepared to order gold from London; whenever such a movement can be advantageously made. ment can be advantageously made.

Arabi Goes Into Comfortable Exite. London, Dec. 11.—This week Arabi and the other prisoners will emback with their families on a vessel at Alexandria and depart immediately for Ceylon. Each will give his parole to Lord Dufferin that he will not leave the island without permission of the English government, and each will be maintained there by the government, and each will be manuarmed there by the government in a manner befitting his previous station. Arabi is placed where he will be as harmless as the man who wore the fron mask, and the annexation of Egypt proceeds more comfortably and with less attempt at diamite.

A Wall-Street Rumor. New York, Dec. 11.—A rumor is current in Wall street to the effect that Mr. Vanderbilt had seemed the bulk of the Omalia stock, and that if President Porter, of the Omaha road, did not consent to a settlement of the war, Mr. vanderbilt would ask him to resign his office, and in case of refusal would apply to the courts for his removal. Presidents Porter, of the Omaha company, said that he had heardne intimation of such a fact, if it had actually eccurred, beyond the street remor that had been carried to the Windsor hotel. He considered the reports to be oursely securality. the reports to be purely speculative.

Manning and Chalmers

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11 .- A new complication has arisen in the matter of the case between Manning and Chalmers. Word comes from the governor of Mississippi that he will consider the refusal of the certificate by Manning as nullifying the election, and that he will, in Buch case, order a new election and disregard any contest that may be pending in concress. He is quoted as saving that he knows nothing of any contest, and decided the case upon the figures before him.

An Exciting Debate in the House on the River and Harbor Bill.

Washington, Dec. 11.-In the senate Saturday politions from tobacco dealers were prosented for a rebate equal to any reduction that may be made in the tax. Mr. Pendleton gave notice that after the bankruptcy bill was disposed of he would move to take up the civil-service bill. Mr. Vance secure, I the passage of a resolution directing the secretary of the treasury to furnish a detailed statement of the cost of collecting internal revenue in each district. Mr. Hawley introduced a bill to prevent officers of the United States from collecting authoriptions or assessments from each other. A brief excentive session was hold.

held.

In the house of representatives, Mr. Page reported a resolution calling on the recordary of war for information whether the funds set aside by the river and harbor bill were appropriated for works not of interest to commore or navigation, and, if so, requesting that specifications be furnished. An exenting delact followed, in which Melane and Tobeson supported the resolution and Cox and Kassen opposed it, but it was adopted. Mr. Kassen reported a bill to improve the civil savice. A bill was passed to rectify the title to the military post at El Paso. Mr. McCoid introduced a bill to regulate interstate continuous.

THE RATE WAR,

KEEPING THE SABBATH | The Newest Development in the Business of Railway Transportation.

> ! Magnates New Go to War for the Conquest of Territory, Not : for Rates.

An Unsuccessful Congress of the Diplomats at New York City---Guesses by Outsiders.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.-The conference at the Windsor hotel Saturday of the presidents and other officers of the warring railreads in the northwest lasted an hour and a half. When it was over President Keep, of the Northwestern read, who had presided, said nothing definite had been accomplished. The whole subject, he added, had been referred to a committee consisting of President Porter, of the Omaha; General Manager Merrill, of the St. Paul; Genbral Manager Cable, of the Rock Island; and General Manager and Vice President Hughitt, the Korthwestern, to prepare a plan of seltlement, if possible, to present at a meeting of all the representatives the reads, to be held this Monday afternoon. According to the accounts of those who were present, nothing more was done than to review the same ground that was gene over Friday. The Chippewa Valley Road, whose transfor to the St. Paul brought the noliations in November for peace to a sudden termination, came up again. President Porter, who had insisted that this was a clear invasion of his territory, suggested that the road should be put in such a position that it could not be used to the injury of either the Omaha or the St. Paul system. He contended that it was a dangerous element, on account of the trouble that it might be made to create. President Porter thought that the way to avoid the pernicious influence of the Chippewa Valley was by operating it in the joint interest of both. He left it to be determined how the obsauche should be disposed of, but he said, it must be removed. The St. Paul representatives, it was learned, did not propose to surrender control of the road, although if the Omaha wanted to send business over it they would make a traffic arrangement with it. The question of terriforial rights could not be dislodged from the position in which it had been placed. Presof either the Omaha or the St. Paul system. arrangement with it. The question of territorial rights could not be dislocked from the position in which it had been placed. Prostlent Porter took his old ground throughout regarding it, but the St. Paul was not inclined to yield to him the right to build alone in the country that he maintained belonged naturally to his system. The way the Omalia's territory was imprect out in the conference was by taking the Wisconsin Central railroad, which runs down through the center of Wisconsin, as the dividing line. President Porter was willing to concede the St. Paul that part of the state cast of the Wisconsin Central, but he chained, for the protection of his own system, that part west of it. The Mississippi and St. Croix rivers marked the western limit of what was looked upon as the Omala's exclusive territory. There were no concessions on either side, and when the conference adjourned no progress had been made. The appointment of a committee composed of managers of the road, except President Perrer, creates the impression that an effort would be made to prepare a plan for settlement on a lariff basis, leaving out the territorial question altogether or making it a subject for arbitration later.

The committee held two meetings in the icking out the territorial question also-gather or making it a subject for arbitration later.

The committee held two meetings in the arthermon, and, from all accounts, the thems was the same as in the conference. It was understood that the St. Paul contemplated extending the eastern arm of the Chippewa Valley up from Eau Chire through the very heart of the territory chained by the Omaha. No pledge could be secured from the St. Paul representatives not to make the extension, and the Chippewa Valley proved the principal subject of discussion all day. President Porter was as reacture when the meetings were over as before, and repeated that territorial rights could alone be the basis of seddement. Vice President Hughit said that there were no new phases in the matter, and that the general ituation was unchanged. There were a good many speculators at the Windson, and nearly every one had a different story about the war. One had it that a settlement had been reached, and another that the break was as wide as ever. On account of the conflicting reports, the distinctive and to be known as The Northwestern Committum." The question of territorial rights is comparatively a new one, and if formed a general subject of discussion to-day in its application to the railroad in which it has been made a prominent feature. Alexandor Mitchell, oreadent of the St. Paul, said that what had been terraced territorial rights might be innocent or harmful. It was true that a road had no right to build where there was no lusiness for it, but he denied the privilege of one line to say that another shall restrict teelf to any particular limits. Julius Wadsworth, vice president, of the St. Paul, said that Mr. Porter's demand for an establishment of territorial rights would be disregarded in a settlement. The St. Paul would not put itself on record as binding itself not to build above Eau Claire. The settlement must Radsworth, Vice pression, of the St. Paul, said that Mr. Porter's deniand for an establishment of territorial rights would be disregarded in a settlement. The St. Paul would not put itself on record as binding itself not to build above Eau Claire. The settlement must be made in another way. While the Chippewa Valley line could not be given up, the St. Paul would be glad to do business for the Omaha under a traffic agreement. It was always ready to take all the Insiness that came to it, and the more the better, Mr. T. Milbank, a director of the St. Paul, took the same ground as President Mitchell and Vice President Wadsworth. He said it was lide to suppose that 'territorial rights," as they were denominated, would be embodied in any settlement that neight take pisce.

Ingli Biddle, president of the Rock Island rond, believed that the country on either side of the line for a reasonable distance belonged morally to that road. If it performed its duties the road which invaded its line would be encouching upon its righte. A town might have one line and urge projectors to build another one to the same place, in hopes they would secure the builds of cheap rates by reason of competition. For 200 miles from Council Bluffs flock Island was paralleled by the St. Paul, and the two roads run close together much of the way. There was no need of the St. Paul building where it did. The Book Island was certainly able to do the business. The invasion in this instance was clear through. If, H. Porter, president of the Omaha, said, as he had said before, that to build where the railroad fucilities were already sufficient was ruinous and reckiess. There would not be profit enough for both, and every one knew that one good railroad was fur better than two poor ones. Mr. Portor declared that a railroad should not take a portion of the country to itself without supplying adoquate facilities. He pointed out on a map why he believed that portion of Visconsin west of the Wisconsin rainroad ought to be considered the territory of his road evening.

LATER.—A commercial journal makes the LATER.—A commercial journal makes the amouncement that the committee has agreed to report in favor of an immediate restoration of rates, a repooling of all traffic to competitive points for one year, the suspension of track-building, and the arbitration of claims to territory. Your correspondent learns that the Omalia people demanded joint control of the Chippewa Valley road but the St. Paul representatives offered only a traffic agreement over that purchase.

Tariff Legislation.

Washington, Dec. 11.—The present purpose of the finance committee is to keep threast of the ways and means committee in its tariff work, so that, when a bill for the revision of the tarix comes in the regular order of proceeding to the senate there will not be the usual delays. The rates of duties prothe usual delays. The rates of duties proposed by the commission on iron, steel, woden goods, and silks meet with the approval of the profectionists, but they are very far from satisfactory to those who desire a reform of the tariff. The latter insist that the propositions of the tariff commission are half-heuried measures which do not go far enough to accomplish any practical benefit to the working classes, so far as woolen goods go. The protectionists, however, are disposed to pass the bill exactly as it came from the turiff commission, on the theory that it will be better to make this very moderate revision of the fariff this winter than to incur the risk of sweeping changes which a Democratic house would indicate next winter. dicate next winter.

MAGGIE HENNECKE.

Particulars of the Arrest of Her Alleged Abductors in Nebraska.

The Father of the Missing Girl Thinks Detective Brown a "Crank."

LINCOLN, Neb., Dec. 11.—The mystery which surrounds the arrest of Hamilton, the supposed abductor of Maggie Hennecke, and his conveyance to Hastings has not yet been cleared up. The general concluhere is that the detectives have got the wrong man. It seems two Dubuquo deloctives followed two young girls and a man traveling westward in a wagon. At Pacific Junction, Iowa, they gave up the chase, and a third detective, Bonland, claiming to be one of Pinherton's men, took the case. Bonland claims that he was paid to put the scheme on a good footing at the start, but at the time did not know whose child was to be abducted. He got 5500, he says, for simply mapping the route to be taken before and after the abduction. Now he is working for the reward effected for the capture of the abductors and the recevery of the child. The admission of Bonland that he was in the original piot with Hamiton seems to throw a rather unsavery light around him and his transactions.

When Detective reached Thayer county he discovered the man he wanted was a Nebrasla City. He swore out a warrant at Hastings as the collective reaches the county he discovered the man he wanted was a Nebrasla. Dubuque detectives followed two

When Detective reached Thayer county he discovered the man he wanted was a Nebrasha City. He swore onto waterant at Hastings on Saturday and wont with an officer by rail to Nobrasha City, the deputy shoriff of Adams county going over in a covered wagon, and arceved the man they wanted at the Baraum house last Wednesday evening. He had several aliases, as follows: Dr. McCune, A.W. McChemmons, W. C. Wilson, W. C. Hooker, and James A. Hamilton. He claims to be a lawyer, is ever 50 years old, 5 feet 11 inches taff, iron gray hair and heavy mustache, weghing 175 pounds. The officers claimed that he had only been in Nebraska City a week, and was an accomplice in the abduction of Maggie Hennocke. On the train there was some excitement, as many thought that the prisoner was wrongly arrested. At Lincoln the detectives saw Gov. Nance and the attorney general, to assure them that they were arrard with anthority and expecting a requisition from Wisconsin. No requisition has been received here yet, and the prisoner remains in jail at Hastings. Supt. Loyd, of the fown and Nobraska Packing company, has folgraphed that Hamilton is an employe of that company, being their contractor for hair both in Sioux City and Nobraska City, and to secure his relocas W. J. Lamb, of this city, has been rotained for Hamilton, and it looks like a case of mistaken identity or unauthorized detective service.

Milwacker, Wis., Dec. H.—The Associated Press dispatch from Lincoln, Neb., amounteing the arrest of the atleged abductor of Maggie Honnecke created a decided sensation in this city, and ronewed universal interest in the mystery surrounding the disappearance of the girl.

Mr. Hennocke has received several dispatches. ir). Mr. Hennocke has received several dispatches gril.

Mr. Hennocke has received several dispatches from Brown, who clause to have made the arrest. He procured the services of the increantillo agencies to ascertain the reputation and standing of the man Brown. Inquiries of disinterested and prominent parties revealed life fact that Brown stands very high in business and social circles. When this was heard Mr. Hennecke thought he had obtained an important clew. This opinion was somewhat shattered when Brown telegraphed that the same parties had kidnapped Mrs. Mary Nelson, and it was this that formed the basis for the ascertion that Brown is a crank.

A correspondent called on Mr. Hennecke, and obtained from him the following: "The matter is very mysterious to me, and do not know what to links of it. It is by far fite best information I have yet received, and had not the following: "The sest information I have yet received, and had not the following of the matter of the sest information I have yet received, and had not the following of the sest information I have yet received, and had not the following of the sest information I have yet received, and had not know what to blink of it. It is by for fire lost information I have yet received, and had not the follow used the name of Mrs. Nelson in the matter I would have given it some credence. As it is, I take no stock in it. But what seems the finniest the man has spent considerable time and money in the work, and has never asked for a cent. He has always paid the telegrandic charges and when he seem a letter if time and money in the work, and has never asked for a cent. He has always paid the telegraphic charges, and when he sent a letter it would he by express, with all costs prepaid."

Mr. Hennecke informs a correspondent that he has telegraphed Brown at Linech, Neb., to send him by mail a complete statement of the amost had bed him to scarch for the amposed abductors in that stale, the progress that has been made, and the prospects, and consequently will not hear from him for k day or two, unless something transpires to warrant a telegraph dispatch. Mr. Hennecke manifests a decided relacionate to abandon the conclusion that his child found a watery grave, which was reached through do recovery of her but on the Sunday following her disapperance. Consequently this Nebraska business, he thinks, even if it should prove to involve the abduction of a child does not centern little Maggie. To-morrow will complete the several, week of Maggie's startingly mysterious disappearance, yet the lapse of thise tends rather to increase than abate the interest that is everywhere fell regarding her possible fate. Every call brings inquiries for pictures and descriptions of the little girl, and the solicitations are complied with in all cases that do not present the appearance of pure little curiosity. Mr. Hennecke is procuring a number of additional photographs to neet this demand.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Sergt. Ballentine, the English barrister, recently made a visit to some of the courts of this city. He said: "In your jails I found a marked contrast to the English system. With its when a man is to La-English system. With us when a man is to be hung, our system is to prepare him for the next world by giving him a fortaste of it in this. You seem to tote your condemned prisoners and to make their last hours as pleasant as possible. Ladies with the misplaced charity of their sex, keep the condemned well supplied with flowers. It seems that almost anyone with the shadow of excuse can see the condemned. With us, no one sees a man on his road to the scaffold save certain officials, the theory being that a man condemned to death theory being that a man condemned to death is one dead to the world.

Conspiracy.
Philadelphia, Dec. 11.—The wife of Engineer Melville is at her home in Sharon Hill. A reporter had a chat with her, and in the course of the conversation she made a serious charge against one of the men who took her to the Norristown asylum. "After I had been placed in the carriage to be taken to the Norristown asylum," said Mrs. Melville, "we went ristown asytutic," Said area, Medville, we won't along some distance with comparatively little to say to each other. When we had gone a few miles, however, Washington James, the magistrate who was taking me there, drew a bottle from his pocket and endeavored to make me drink. Lasked him what was in it and after a while he told me it was whishly. He then tried again to get me to drink, but I would not do it. I know they wanted to get me drunk and wanted my breach to small of liquor, so that when we arrived at the asytum the people would say that I was drunk when I arrived." Mrs. Mciville says she is in actual want. She says her husband has taken her goods. "Last Saturday I had to piedge my diamend ring to get money enough to pay the expenses of the house. I want Mr. Melville to let me have the circle on and allow me two-thirds of his pay. If he does this I will gladly consent to any separation, but I will have the children, and he shall support us properly. My durings would hover live with his people. Why, do you know he never introduced me to one of his family when we were first married? He used to make some excuse every time I spoke about seeing hou, so I soon ceased to mention them at all." along some distance with comparatively little Randall Out of the Race. Washington, Dec. 11—A report is in circulation that Sam Randall will retire from the contest for the speakership of the next House. He will throw his strength in favor of Blackburn, of Mentucky, This arrangement is made to help Randall with the south when he comes squarely cut as a presidential candidate. The Kentucky dologation is said to be equally divided between Blackburn and Carlisle. An argument used in favor of the former is that he has the stronger and clearer voice and is as good a parliamentarian as Carlisle.

THE LAND WHERE OUR DREAMS

COME TRUE! Far over some mist-bidden river,
And under a wenderful sky.
Where the rain never blots out the sunshine,
And our loves never weary, or die;
Where the flowers never fade—but in changing
Their magnetl sweetness renew,
Lies a glorified realm of enclantiment.
The land where our dreams come true!

By mystical symbols and tokens,
We know of that beautiful hard;
But, alast on the threshold of manhood.
The frail cine slipt out of our hand!
And the wild river wanders between us.
The white gates are hidden from view,
And only in sleep we remember
The land where our dreams come true;

We shall find the lost treasures we seek for, Revealed, in that wonderful sphere:
All the aims and the dreams of the bygone,
All the good that cluded us here;
The innovent faiths of our childhood,
The one fluwless friendship we knew,
Arrayed in our vanished flusions,
In the land where our dreams come true!

We know, in divinest fulfillment,

Our eath hopes are subreed at home;
The jewels we mourn here are honded
Where the north and the rist cannot come;
And of: when the sunset is fairest,
We catch, through a rilt in the blue,
A far-away glimpse of the provice
Of the land where our dreams come true!

There are garnered the prayers of our mothers,
And the soft cradle song that they sing;
There they move in the midst, with white garments,
And faces immortally young?
And not of the mists of the river
Their sweet hands that shall reach us the clue
That leads, through the Valley of Shadew,
To the land where our dreams come true!

So, weeping, we lay down our idols, And bury our loves out of sight, Though we know, in our hearts, we shall find them, By and by, in the Mansions of Light; And the sait tears that fall on their ashes,

And blossom in punsy and rue, werther shall be lilies immoral, In the Land Where Our Dreams Come True! Emma Alice Browne, in Detroit Free Press.

THE BARRINGTON TOLL-GATE.

Jennie Bartlett's father and mother had been suddenly called away for the night to Parnassus Center, where Mrs. Bartlett's sister had been taken very ill, and Jennie was left to keep the toll-gate alone. It was not a difficult task, for scarcely any one traveled over the Bar-rington road after nine o'clock, and those who did passed through the open gate without paying toll.

But even if it had been harder, Jennie would have been equal to it. She had lived at the tell-gate ever since she was a baby, and knew perfectiv well what to charge, and how to make the proper Indeed, she often kept the gate for her father when he was at home, and people passing through it would be apt to wonder how so bright and pretty a girl could grow up in so lonesome a place. Jennie, however, did not mind the lonesomeness. Her dearest wish was to go off to boarding school; but so long as she was at home it mottered little to be about was at home it mattered little to her that Barrington was three miles off on the one hand, and Leicester ten miles on the other, and that there was scarcely a house between. She even liked the selitude and was almost sorry when the telephone connecting Barrington with Lei-cester made a connection by the way with the toll-gate. Before they seemed to be out of the world, and the people coming through the gate were like visi-tors from another sphere; now, the fre-quent ringing of the call-bell reminded her that civilization was not so far distant, after all.

On this particular night there were not likely to be even the usual number of passers by. It was dark and threatening. Looking out of the door about nine o'clock, Jennie could hardly see more than a hundred feet either up or down the road. It would be a had night, she thought, for the gate to get accidentally shut; anybody coming along night run into it without warning; for that matter, people might run into the posts on either side. She hung a lantern on one of the posts to prevent this accident, and going in the house, locked the doors and went to bed. The fact that she was alone in the house did not disturb her in the least, and in ten minutes she was fast asleep. Some time in the night she was saddealy awakened by the ringing of the telephone bell. She listened confusedly to hear if it rang three times, which was the toll-gate signal, or oftener, to call up some of the other people on the same wire. Two of the connections she knew were in Leicester, the third was their own, the fourth was in Barrington Bank, the fifth in the tannery, and the sixth in the central office at Barrington. In her bowilderment Jennio could not at first determine how many times it did ring; but at last she decided it was six— for the Barrington central office. That did not mean the toll-gate, and Jennie prepared to turn over for another nap, when a sudden thought aroused her. It was certainly after midnight, and the central office did not keep open later than twelve o'clock. The bank, too, was shut up, and so was the tannery; on the whole fine she was probably the only person who could hear the bell. What if it should be something important! Indeed, it would hardly ring that at time ofnight unless it were important. Quickly jumping out of bed, she ran to the instrument, put the receiver to her car, and called through the transmitter; "Helio! helio!"

A voice came back to her, so distinct that it seemed almost in the same room, saying: "Hello! Is that the central of-fice?" The tone was quick and sharp, and Jennie felt sure that something must have happened.

"No, sir," she called; "it's the toll-gate. I'm Jennie Bartlett." "Tell your father to come here right away," the voice said; "it's very important."

Jennie felt a little sinking at her heart. "Father's away," she said, "and I'm here alone."

She heard the voice exclaim something in an impatient tone, and then the sound of two or three other people talking as though there was some doubt as to what could be done. "Can I do anything?" she inquired almost hoping that she could not.

Another conversation followed, which Jennie this time overheard; the speakers were no doubt nearer the telephone.

"Why do you want to let them get "Why do you want to let them get into Barrington at all?" one voice asked. "Why not stop them at the toll-gate?" "To be sure," said another. "If they get past the gate, like as not they'll turn down the Riverton road and throw Allen off the track. They can't turn off before they get to the gate; we're sure of them as far as that."

"Tell the girl—" and then the speaker turned arms and Turnic course.

turned away, and Jennie caught only a confusion of sounds.

Presently she heard another "Hello!"
"Hello!" she responded.
"The Leleester bank has been robbed," went on the voice, hurriedly, "by two men with a wagon and white horse. They have driven towards Barrington, with Mr. Allen and two constables in pursuit, half an hour behind. You must—" Here the voice stopped as suddenly and completely as though it as suddenly and completely as though it and had an extinguisher put over checked, and Jennie knew enough about the telephone to be aware that in some way the connection had been abruptly cut off. It was in vain that she rang the bell and called "Hello!" No one answered. Jennie felt oncomere the old sense that she was out of the world. Leicester seemed all at once removed hundreds of miles away.

But what was it that she must or must not do? Why had not the connection lasted only a minute longer, when her instructions would have been complete? When were the robbers to be expected? Jenuic made a little calculation. If they had been gone thirty minutes before any one started in parsuit, that would carry them, by fast driving, half-way to the toll-gate. If ten minutes had gone by before the telephone bell had rung, she night look for them within a quarter of an hour. What was she to do? The conversation she had overheard came to her mind. "Stop them at the toll-gate," one of the voices had said. Very likely they would have told her to do that if the telephone had kept on. But how could a little girl arrest two armed and desperate men?

By this time she had began to feel chilly. She could not go back to hed with this responsibility upon her, even though she did not know how to meetit; so, dressing herself, she opened the front door, and looked and listened. The uight was darker than ever. A little space around the gate was lit up by the warning lantern. It would not help in stopping the lurglars, she saddenly thought, to illuminate their way; so, going over to the light, she blew it out, and left the road in total darkness. That was at least one step toward the desired end.

All at once she thought of the gate. "How stupid!" she said to herself. "Why didn't I think of that be-It was fastened back against the side of the house, but in a moment she had unlocked it and swung it around, until it stretched completely across the road. There was only a latch on the gate, but going in the house she brought out of one place a padlock, and from another a chain, with which she fasted it so securely that no ordinary strength could force it open. "They can't get through that," she said to herself; and there isn't any way of getting around it." Then she went in the house, locked and bolted the door, rolled a bureau up against it, fastened all the windows, pulled down the shades, and waited in the dark for the sound of wheels.

It was not long before they came, but to Jennis every minute seemed an hour, while every rustling leaf outside sounded like a man's stealthy tread. When at last she heard them coming, far up the read, her heart stood still. Nearer and nearer they came. Would they not see the gate? she wondered. The horse still kept on; and instantly there was a sudden exclamation outside, a crack as though something had come into collision with the gate, the sound of splintering wood, and the noise of a plunging horse. Jennic did not venture to move; shedared not go to the window, butsat in the middle of the room, shaking with fear, and listening anxiously for what might happen next. Presently steps sounded on the cutside, and in a moment there was a rap on the door.

Jenuie remained perfectly quiet, though her heart beat so loud that she thought they must hear it outside. In a moment the knocking ceased. "Folks asleep," she could hear one of the men say.

(Asleep, or dead, or run away," the other one growled.
"Shall we try the window?"

Jennie trembled all over, but the sash held firm.

"Oh, come on!" exclaimed his companion. "Don't let's waste time here; we can splice the shufts with the halter." They moved off again, and Jennie breathed more freely. If the shafes were broken, it would be a work of some minutes to mend them, and the pursuing party might yet arrive in time. Mr. Allen, who Jennie knew to be the President of the Leicester Bank, had the fastest horses in the county, and ought to be able to make up at least ten minutes in ten miles. For a while there was quiet outside. were evidently working at the shafts, and only the stamping of the horse's feet gave any signs of life. Jennie began to get nervous and to listen more intently for the pursuers' approach. By this time they could not be far off. Finally, unable to sit still any longer, she crept upstairs, and sitting down on the floor by the open window of the attic, yentned the open window of the attic, ventured to look out. The white horse was distinctly visible as it stood by the gate, but the men, bending over the wagon, were hardly more than an outline. Presently they seemed to have finished, and backing the horse around, proceeded to hitch him in the shafts. Would the others never come? The gate was not yet opened, but Jennie began to fear the burglars would not find that a serious difficulty. Suddenly through the woods came the sound of horses' hoofs galloping as if for life. Did the men hear it too?

Apparently they did.
"Open the gate," she heard one of then say.

His companion went to it and vainly tried to pull it open. "It's padiocked," be exclaimed, after a minute. The other muttered an angry oath. "Pick it! he cried. "They've put up a job on us here. I knew we didn't cut that wire quick enough." It was a minute before the burglar's ill could pick the lock, and by that time the pursuing wagon was dangerously near. "Open the gate!" shouted the first man, pulling back his horse to escape its weep.

The other pushed, and the great bar swing slowly back. But before it had opened wide enough to let them through, the other wagon had dashed in upon the scene. "Stand where you are," Jennie heard Mr. Allen's voice call out, "or I'll shoot you down I What immediately followed Jennie did not see, for leaving the window, she rushed down stairs, lit the lantern, rolled back the bureau, unlocked the door, and went out. When she had gained the road the two burglars, captured and tied, were being guarded by the constables, while Mr. Allen was investigating the contents of the wagon, and making sure, as far as he could in the darkness, that all was right. At Jennie's approach he looked up.

"Ah!" he said. "Are you the toll-gate keeper's daughter? Just ask your father to step out here, won't you?"

Jennie smiled. "Father isn't at home, sir," she said. "Oh, well, your mother, then, or any one who keeps the gate." "Mother isn't at home, either, sir; I am keeping the gate." The gentleman looked at her in sur-

"You!" he exclaimed. "What made these fellows stophere?" "They broke their wagon, sir."

"How did they ha men to do that?" "The horse ran into the gate, sir."

"Wasthe gate shut?"

"Yes, sir. "You don't usually sbut the gate iighta?" "No, sir, but I did to-night." He looked at her for further explana-tion, and Jennie, who never liked to tell tion, and Jennie, who never fixed to tell her own exploits, was obliged to go on. "They telephoned me about it at Leicester, sir," she said, briefly. "Did they tell you to shut the gate?" "No, sir; the telephone stopped before they got as far as that; these men cut the wire, and I had to think for myself what I should do."

"And you thought of that?" he asked.

what I should do."

"And you thought of that?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," she said, modestly.

"Well," he said, "you are a thoughtful little girl. You've saved me a great deal of money to-night, and I'll never forcet it."

And he never did. The directors of the bank passed a vote of thanks, at their next meeting, to Miss Jennie Bartlett "for her prompt and efficient services in arresting the burglars who feloniously entered the bank building on the evening of September—, and abstracted the valuable contents of its vault;" and more than that, sont, her a purse of money. than that, sent her a purse of money, with which she was able that winter to carry out her long-cherished plan of going to school. It was a disagreeable experience to go through, but Jennie will always date whatever success she has in the world from that night at the Barrington toll-gate. -- Harper's Young People.

Sudden Death.

Mr. J. B. Doc. Sr., received a telegram this morning from Robert Palmers Albert Lee, Minnesota, giving the sad intelligence that Andrew Palmer, Jr., died suddenly yesterday aftermoon. He was the eldest son of our worthy townsman, the Hon. Andrew Palmer. The deceased was well known in Janesville, having spent most of his life in this city. His sudden and untimely death will be deeply lamented by a great many in Janesville. It is not known at this time whether his remains will be brought here for burial or not. How's the Baby?

"How's the baby?" "His croup is better, thank you. We gave him some of Thomas' Echectric Oil as you advised, doctor, and shall give him some more in an hour or so." Next day the doctor pronounced the youngster cared. Sold by Palmer & Stevens and Sherer & Co.

-Mr. Harry Merrill, son of Hon. Hiram Merrill, is in the city for a few days visit with his parents. The report that Harry had sold his farm near Speacer, Iowa, and that he intends to again take up his residence in this city, was a little premative. While such negotiations are pending, the sale of his farm has not been consummated. Harry would be welcomed back to this city by a host of frionds.

-John M. Ward, who is well known in Janosyi'le, is now a member of the New York Metropolitan base ball club, and will receive $3,000 for his services next summer. The following sketch appears in the Republican-Sentinel: "John M. Ward, who is expected to have the heavy end of the pitching, is a big batter and one of the best bese-ranuers in the country. He is also an excellent outfielder and third beseman. He was born in Benefonte, Pa., in 1860, stands 5 feet Sinches, and weighs 150 pounds. In August, 1877, he played with the Mutuals of Janesville, this state, going to Buffalo to finish the season after the Mutuals disbanded. During the past season he was with the Providence club."

-The wife of the Rev. Ohn A. Cartis of Court Street church, will be taken to Florida during the winter, where, it is. hoped, the mild and dry climate will do much to restore her to health. She will probably stay somewhere in the neighborhood of Jacksonville, but as to that no definite arrangements have been made-She will be accompanied by Mr. William Curtis, brother of the esteemed pastor of Court Street church, who will remain in Florida with her during the winter. Every remady known to medical skill has so far failed to make any decided improvement in her condition, and a trip south where bright sunshine, a dry atmosphere, and an equable climate prevail, has been determined upon, in the hopothat a recovery may yet be efficited. Waiting for the Verdict.

At clever o'clock this merning the judge's charge to the jury in the Chifford case, was finished, and the jury retired. At the hour of writing (3 p. m.) the are still deliberating. The defendant kissed his mother affectionately when she came into court, this morning, and during the forencon both seemed depressed, as their hopes, raised by the brilliant efforts of the defendant's counsel Saturday, fell under the merciless analysis of the testimony by District Altorney Cooper, whose earnest and positive manner and fine delivery won close attention from the jury. It is generally believed that the verdict will be manslaughter in the second or third degree.

Judge Bennett's charge to the jury was a masterly exposition of the law as applied to the case, bilef and pointed yet covering every detail. All the attorneys in the case have expressed their admiration of it, and some of them went as far as to say that it was the best they had ever heard.

Everybony Knows It.

Everybody knows what red clover is. It has been used many years by the good old German women and physicians for the blood, and is known as the best blood nurifier when properly prepared. Combined with other medical herbs and roots, it forms Dr. Jones' Red Clover Tonie, which is good for all blood disorders, torpid liver, costiveness and sick headache. Sure cure for pimples. Ask Stearns & Baker, druggists, for it. Only fifty cents a bottle.

Moliday Goods.

Messra, F. S. Lawrenco & Co., have received, especially for the holiday season, a fresh stock of goods, including illustrated books, photograph albums, in the latest bindings, Christmas cards, and many other articles belonging to the line of goods kept in bookstores. We direct attention to advortisement of this firm, which will give the reader some idea as to the extent of the stock which is offered to the public. The prices are low, and the stock large from which to select. Persons wishing beautiful books or elegant, albams, or anything in that line, should call on Lawrence & Co.

Popular Every where.

"Burdane," the French name for Burdock, is as popular in France as in America. As an auti-scorbatic, aperient and dinretic it cannot be too highly extolled. BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS combine "in a condensed form" all its good properties. For gout, entaneous disorders and hidney troubles they are nucqualed. Price $1.00.
